While on quarantine, there are limited things to do. At this point, the one thing that we can always count on, is our tv. After finishing a show or movie, the worst thing is trying to find what to watch next. Here are a few suggestions to get you through quarantine.

Onward (Disney +) - Disney has been adding films and shows to their app almost everyday in order to give families something to do. Onward was recently released into theaters, but because of the current restrictions, it was quickly added to Disney +. Onward is about two brothers who go on a quest in hopes of finishing a magic spell. You watch them go through different obstacles as they try to reach their goal. This heartfelt movie is not a disappointment!

All American (Netflix) - All American is a newer sports drama on Netflix. The two season show is slightly based on the true story of Spencer Paysinger. The show highlights the high school struggles of several teenagers while mainly focusing on the football career of the main character Spencer. The show will have you feeling all sorts of emotions as you quickly find yourself attached to characters.

Party of Five (Hulu) - This tear-jerking show follows five children as they try to figure life out after their parents have been deported. As everything falls apart around them, they are forced to run the family business and take care of each other. The siblings try to find their way and help each other through this hard time.

Instant Family (Hulu) - When a married couple are suddenly the foster parents of three siblings, they quickly realize just how hard it is to be parents. When what they hoped would be the start to their new family, quickly turns to disaster, they must find a way to make it right.

Inside Out (Disney +) - This is a movie that the whole family can enjoy. The story takes place in the mind of the main character Riley. The emotions in her mind, have to work together to help her adjust to the new life she and her parents have.
