

The Nameless Station

By Alex Taft

Who else remembers the competition to name the new iced coffee station in the cafeteria last year? If you don't remember after almost 6 months, allow me to refresh your memory. Students were to submit names for the new iced coffee station, and a vote was to be held on the winner; the student with the winning vote was going to get free iced coffee for the rest of the year, and leave behind a piece of themselves in their Oak Hills legacy. The winning name was never announced due to the school's shut down and subsequent inability to vote properly. So, what should we do now? Count our losses? Leave the iced coffee station unnamed? No! That's not the Highlander spirit! Today, we'll hold a new vote!

Remember, once the station is named, that name will become a permanent part of Oak Hills High School. Students and staff alike decades from now will know the iced coffee station by the name you choose today. Oak Hills history will be made today!

Some names suggested are The Brew Crew by Aidan Whitaker, Jacked up Java by Logan Willwerth, Vibe Check Station by Samuel Leugers, Java the Hutt by Susannah Langlitz, Lilly Burke by Lilian Burke, The Cov-A-Matic by Katelyn Thompson, Space Coffee by Drew Schinle, Le café by Sophia Marsala, Highland's Coffee by Isabelle Trapp, Central Park by Shelby Turner, Icey but Energized by Kaely Knapp, The Busy Bean by Emma Whyle, Ice Ice Baby by David Bergninger, Scot's Brew by Samantha Curless, Impresso Espresso by Kamryn Dalton, The Highfeen Machine by Lauren Posival, Cool Beans by Leo Langlitz, Free WiFi Chamber by Christopher Artis, The Morning Grind by Maxx Zwerin, Bean Jail by Maiya Taft, and The Highlander Hotspot by Bailey Drummond. If you like any of these, don't forget to vote!
