

The Christmas Season is NOW

By: Gabrielle Dreyer

It is that time of year folks. The Halloween era has finally come to an end, which means it's Christmas time! Though, some people disagree, and might think that the holiday season is after Thanksgiving, for us teenage girls and Christmas enthusiasts, the holiday season is finally here. Christmas is the greatest time of the year, well according to Micheal Buble. Why not celebrate the season early? If more people are celebrating early, there will be more positive attitudes amongst moms and dads, aunts and uncles, and even your friends. Movie theaters are already starting to show Christmas-themed movies, including the new movie "Last Christmas." Why have a negative attitude, when you could be joyous and spirited?

you to just pick them up.

I recommend watching Christmas movies now if you are in a 'grinch-like' mood. Christmas movies always make me feel happy, and it gets me into the holiday state of mind. Although it is only November, the time is now to start preparing for Christmas. Buy those Christmas movies and sit by a cozy fire, drinking your grandma's famous hot chocolate. Stores are beginning to set out decorations which ultimately means they are at discounted prices. Trees, snow globes, and much more are on the shelves waiting for Lately, the temperature has been dropping, and dropping...and dropping. I am pretty sure that Frosty the Snowman is even cold. According to the local meteorologists, record lows are being forecasted this winter. Record Lows! It is already snowing and becoming icy. Jack Frost is deciding that Christmas is coming early this season, so you should do the same.

A recent poll from my social media, asked whether Christmas starts in the month of November. An overwhelming number of responses ( 76%) said "yes", Christmas starts in November, while only 24% said "No", Christmas does not start in November.

Christmas is such an important holiday, in which family comes together to be merry and bright. November is the time to get out the tree, cookies, and eggnog. The legendary Santa Claus might even bring you more gifts for getting in the spirit early. Spread joy and cheer, because Christmas is finally here!
